COMMUNITY LINGUIST CERTIFICATE

CILLDI is pleased to offer a unique sequence of six courses leading to the Community Linguist Certificate (CLC). The CLC is a provincially-recognized certificate focusing on language documentation and analysis, community language planning and promotion, and the use of technology in language revitalization. As of 2015, 80 students speaking many different languages have completed their courses and earned their certificates.

This specialized training allows Community Linguists to lead community-based language projects, produce basic dictionaries and grammars for new language learners, develop new vocabulary items, hold orthography and literacy workshops, record and transcribe personal stories and traditional narratives, build simple language databases and websites, and write grant proposals for community-based language projects.

The six courses leading to the certificate are identified with (CLC) in the course listings. Students who are starting their certificate program this year are encouraged to take LING 111 in Block 1, and LING 211 in Block 2.

TUITION

For Canadian citizens and permanent residents, tuition costs $924.10 for one 3-credit course and $1,456.18 for two 3-credit courses. This figure is correct as of October 2015; please check the University of Alberta Tuition and Fees listing for any changes.
